

Alexander Bartleet "Ladder"

Aaron Waghorn

Fatu Feu'u "Pink House, Thornton Bay"

Mark Wooller "Taranaki Rivers"

Autumn Catalogue 21st May – 14th June 2014

As our Indian Summer rolls on, art continues to hit the headlines, providing a steady diet to the media and a level of buoyancy well received in the market place. New Zealand is a growing country and as such the art market grows exponentially. Following two well-reviewed exhibitions by Rozi Demant and Robyn Kahukiwa (T. J. McNamara, NZ Herald) we now present a fine array of new contemporary art for our Autumn Catalogue.

Many artists have been busy completing new work for this exhibition and features of the catalogue include two award winning sculptures by Alexander Bartleet. Bartleet's "Black Line Cluster" recently won the Waiheke Small Sculpture Ward this year and an important work "Ladder" was a finalist in the prestigious Wallace Awards this year. This work was also chosen for the touring exhibition.

We are pleased to feature a talented young Wellington artist Aaron Waghorn. Waghorn re-connects to the style of the post pop art movement utilizing primary colours, bold imagery and striking graphics. He presents several elements in each work including designs, architectural drawings, geometrical shapes, figurative studies and silhouettes. Waghorn has completed several large diptychs and smaller scale paintings for successful exhibitions in Wellington. Some outstanding large and smaller scale works have been consigned by the artist for our exhibition in Auckland.

Viky Garden has been busy segueing into an uncompromising series of new portraits. While these works appear somewhat looser in style than the artist's previously more structured compositions there is more resourcefulness and mystery attached to these recent works. Viky Garden's new series of paintings have been well received in the USA where her dealer there closed several sales recently. Tyrone Layne has recently returned from his painting sojourn in London. Layne has just completed the new work entitled "Spilt Coke on Queen Street". This highly detailed painting perfectly captures a balmy Auckland city evening and features over 70 figures in the scene. New paintings by Robyn Gibson and Rozi Demant compliment this collection of figurative works of figurative studies by four innovative and talented artists.

From the South Island Chris Pole and Justin Summerton have sent compelling surreal landscapes titled "Time stands still in travel" and "Colonial Painter, Taranaki II". Mark Wooller and Fatu Feu'u have also consigned new works for the exhibition which are tempting teasers prior to their solo exhibitions in the following months.

Three senior artists who need no introduction are Max Gimblett, Roy Good and Mervyn Williams. Several fine paintings by these artists are included in the exhibition any of which would make fine additions to any art collection.

Upcoming Exhibitions

Autumn Catalogue 21st May – 14th June

Fatu Feu'u "Pae Pae" Preview: Tuesday 24th June, Exhibition Dates: 25th June – 12th July

Mark Wooller "The Lie of the Land" Preview: Tuesday 22nd July, Exhibition Dates 23rd July – 9th August

Please Note: Due to the increasing use of social media and email, we will be doing fewer mail-outs. If you wish to keep up-to-date with Gallery exhibitions and events, we ask that you subscribe to our email list or follow us on our Facebook, Twitter or Google+ pages.

Quote of the month

"I made a career being the wrong thing in the right place"

Andy Warhol

E. info@warwickhenderson.co.nz | T/F. +64 9 3097513

W. www.warwickhenderson.co.nz | 32 Bath Street, Parnell, Ak, NZ